SWEDENBORG'S LIBRARY

An alphabetical list

We print here a list of books contained in Swedenborg's library as it was auctioned off on November 28, 1772.

In the original auction catalog, of which at least three copies are extant, the books were arranged according to size: folio, quarto, octavo, and duodecimo. Within these categories each book was given a number placed before the author's name or the title. The numbers were arranged consecutively but there was no attempt to arrange the authors or titles alphabetically or under subject headings. This makes it difficult to use for quick reference.

In the following list the books have been rearranged alphabetically according to author or title. In some instances corrections have been made of obvious misprints or in spelling, and, where ascertained, more complete titles, initials of authors, publishing dates and places have been supplied for easier identification.

Copies of all the books listed, except those marked by asterisks (*), are in the Swedenborgiana Library of the Academy of the New Church, Bryn Athyn. The ordering of the catalog into alphabetical sequence was done by Miss Beryl G. Briscoe, with some revisions and editing for this printing by Lennart O. Alfelt.

In New Church Life for June 1907 there is a report by Alfred H. Stroh entitled "Research Work on Swedenborgiana at Stockholm and Upsala." Mr. Stroh reported, beginning on page 346, the Catalogus as follows:

"Archivist Flodmark, of the City Archives, drew my attention to some notices in the Stockholm newspapers for 1772, in reference to the auctions of Swedenborg's house, effects, and library, among them being an announcement of a printed catalogue of the library.

Accordingly I went to the Royal Library and in a few minutes found the catalogue among the collection of Auction-Catalogues for 1772-1773.<sup>1</sup> There are also two copies of this rarity in the University Library, "Carolina Rediviva," at Upsala. The catalogue fills sixteen pages small octavo, and bears a title on the first page, which reads in English: A List of the fine collection of books left behind by the deceased, the wellborn Assessor Swedenborg, in various languages and sciences, which will be sold in the Book-Auction Chamber in Stockholm, Nov. 28, 1772. First comes the main collection, arranged according to folios, quartos, octavos, duodecimos; then, with a like arrangement, two appendices.<sup>2</sup> The list shows that Swedenborg's library was especially rich in works on physics, chemistry, mathematics, mineralogy, geology, anatomy, history, theology, etc. The year of publication and the number of volumes is generally given, and I calculate that there were about five or six hundred volumes in the library. Many of the works are in Latin, French; and there are also some in Swedish, English, Dutch and Italian. Not only is this catalogue of great value for the exact determination of the literature used and referred to by Swedenborg, but many important conclusions may be drawn from an analysis of the contents. It is clear that the catalogue refers to the collection of a lifetime, made in the course of Swedenborg's extensive travels and studies. Many of the works, including scientific ones, were printed after the Arcana, and indicate Swedenborg's continued interest in scientific questions long after his distinctly scientific period. This is also supported by the evidence contained in certain scientific letters of Swedenborg written during his old age and by the publication of new editions of his scientific works after 1745."

<sup>2</sup> [Later it was realized that the two appendices referred to books that in all probability did not belong to Swedenborg's library but were sold at the same auction.—Ed.]
